IMLS National Leadership Grant Update
ASERL Collaborative Federal Depository Program
October 2009

Overview

On September 24, 2009, ASERL was awarded a three-year grant from the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) to support ongoing development of ASERL Collaborative Federal Depository Project (CFDP).

An important focus of the IMLS-funded project is to create "centers of excellence" that will ensure multiple, complete retrospective collections of federal publications by agency, supported by subject matter experts who are able to provide sophisticated, in-depth reference services.

The project, as outlined in other ASERL documents, will focus on the creation of two centers of excellence as pilot tests: The University of Kentucky (Works Progress Administration) and the University of South Carolina (Department of Education). The following activities will take place at each test site:

- inventory holdings and ensure accurate cataloging and holdings records for the extant collections
- create master lists of all titles in the ED, FW, and Y3.W 89/2 classes
- check "center of excellence" holdings against master lists to identify gaps
- fill gaps in collections as they are identified
- identify subject expertise to facilitate use of the collections
- document processes and decisions

The goal of the project is to demonstrate the feasibility of the CFDP collaborative model of "centers of excellence." Success of the model will be determined by the model's ability to meet its goals of increased completeness of holdings, improved access to holdings for the general public and other depository libraries, and improved services to support use of federal government publications.

The project will be supervised by Project Oversight Team, comprised of the Project Director, John Burger, Executive Director of ASERL, Sandra McAninch, Regional
