When asked if they experience discrimination or harassment due to other aspects of their identities, the majority of respondents said that they do. 61% indicated that they experience multiple discrimination.

Intersectionality and multiple discrimination are usually regarded as topics that are of interest to only a few and as a “minority of a minority” subject that is “additional work” and not part of most services “core purpose.” The data from this question points to a very different reality. It may well be the case that the majority of people who experience discrimination experience multiple discrimination. But until we all start asking questions about multiple discrimination we will not properly recognise the full extent of the issue or the full impact it has on individuals and society.
Archives of Sexuality and Gender: LGBTQ History and Culture Since 1940, Part I

A unique fully-searchable collection that brings together approximately 1.5 million pages of primary sources on social, political, health, and legal issues impacting LGBTQ communities around the world.

Archives of Sexuality and Gender: LGBTQ History and Culture Since 1940, Part II

Fully searchable periodicals, newsletters, manuscripts, government records, organizational papers, correspondence, an international selection of posters, and other primary source materials for this milestone digital program were selected by an advisory board consisting of leading scholars and librarians in sexuality and gender studies.

Archives of Sexuality and Gender: Sex and Sexuality, Sixteenth to Twentieth Century

Archives of Sexuality and Gender: Sex and Sexuality, Sixteenth to Twentieth Century contains primary sources on the history of gender roles and sexuality in the early modern and modern periods.

Archives of Sexuality and Gender: International Perspectives on LGBTQ Activism and Culture

International Perspectives on LGBTQ Activism and Culture examines populations and areas of the world previously underrepresented in prevailing discourses around sexuality and gender, such as southern Africa and Australia.

Women's Studies Archive: Issues and Identities

This archive collection traces the path of women's issues from past to present—pulling primary sources from manuscripts, newspapers, periodicals, and more.

Women's Studies Archive: Voice and Vision

This collection provides valuable primary source materials on the evolution of feminism and women's experiences throughout the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Coverage focuses on women's political activism such as suffrage, birth control, pacifism, civil rights, and socialism across multiple geographic regions. Particular attention has been paid to material produced by women, not simply for women.

Shirley Chisholm, still unbought and unbosSED, will speak in Thousand Oaks. A co-founder of N.O.W., of the National Women’s Political Caucus, and one of America’s most prominent feminists, Congresswoman Chisholm has effected changes some felt impossible.

Outspoken from the beginning, she immediately stood up against the out-moded seniority system of Congress by taking on the awesome House Rules Committee. Of course, she won.

Congresswoman Chisholm announced her candidacy for the Presidency without consulting the political bosses. Her support came from the millions of Americans who shun the political clubhouse, but believe that our political system can survive. No special interest groups contribute to her campaigns; she derives her power from “the people,” and remains unbought and unbosSED.
Shirley Chisholm DEMANDS

Immediate replacement of FBI Director Hoover;

A non-political Justice Department;

Appointment of more blacks, non-whites and women as judges, to the FBI and police forces;

Civilian review boards against police corruption;

Minimize discretionary powers of police;

Greater financial support for local and state police, to upgrade police personnel rather to supply them with more mace and surveillance helicopters.

ONLY Candidate to speak of Gay Issues to a straight crowd.

FIRST Candidate to speak up for Gay People.

ONLY Candidate to vote consistently against military appropriation to Vietnam.

FIRST Candidate to speak up for Legalization of Marijuana.

FIRST Candidate to allow women the right of their own bodies concerning abortion.

FOR PRESIDENT
A dynamic force for responsible change.

All Black people know what police-state tactics are - we've lived with them for over 150 years. Police violence, racially discriminatory treatment, excessive use of "Stop-and-frisk" laws, biased enforcement of motor vehicle regulations - all are police harassments and police intimidations common to the poor and non-white.

America has entered the road to 1984.

Collection Highlight: Comisión Femenil Mexicana Nacional Archives

The Comisión Femenil Mexicana Nacional is an organization of women who enhance and promote the image of Chicana/Latina women in all levels of society. It promoted programmes that provided solutions for the women and their families.

The collection contains administrative and event files, correspondence, newsletters, articles, research, reports, conference materials, meeting reports, publications such as newspaper articles and newsletter, interviews and projects.
The collection consists of Sally Gross's personal documents, photographs and memorabilia and reflects her transition from living as a man to living as a woman, her life as a priest, work with the South African government in the Human Rights Commission and the Land Reform Commission and her crisis of faith and subsequent interest in Buddhism and Quakerism. Some of her academic writing is also included. Sally Gross' story also featured in GALA's 2016 exhibition Journeys of Faith.
Collection Highlight: European Women’s Periodicals

International Archive of the Women’s Movement, Amsterdam

Some of the most important political, professional, and popular periodicals written by and for women across Europe from the period 1840-1940. Periodicals from Austria, Belgium, France, Germany and German language issues from Paris and Prague, the Netherlands, Dutch Indonesia, Switzerland. Content in French, German, and Dutch.
Historically, sexual education was not only concerned with educating young people about the “birds and the bees”, but also offering guidance to newlyweds, parents, women and men, educators, doctors, and the generally curious. Within the archive you can find books covering sex education from a variety of perspectives: clinical, medical, educational, religious, to books written for the layperson.

Librarians, archivists, and curators saw the value in keeping these books safe, whether from those who might wish to steal them, those who might wish to destroy them, or those who might wish to suppress them, all while making them available for research purposes.
Collection Highlight: Alicia Escalante Papers

Source: University of California, Santa Barbara

Alicia Escalante was a Chicana activist who championed welfare rights, economic justice and women’s rights in Los Angeles during the 1960s Chicano movement. She was involved in, and arrested for, participation in multiple social and economic justice movements.

The collection includes correspondence, speeches, articles, publications and internal organisational files that document her activism and socio-political involvement.
This collection includes artifacts from the gay liberation movements in the United States and Mexico assembled by John Kyper, a member of the Faggots for Freedom Collective in Roxbury Massachusetts. The materials here date from 1969 to 1988 and encompass conference papers, legal documents, and correspondence with well-known activists such as Harvey Milk. Documents produced by gay liberation groups across the country are included, notably publications from the Gay Flames Collective, Red Butterfly, the Lavender and Red Union, and the Chicago Seed. Researchers can also find Kyper's writings on the gay liberation movement in Mexico, as well as interviews, correspondence, photographs, and news clippings associated with gay rights activities in various Mexican locations.
Lesbian Herstory Archives

- Organization Files - Affectionately known as the “org file”, these files, covering 1,640 organizations, related to voluntary and not-for-profit groups in the LGBT community that include a focus on lesbian issues, as well as women’s /feminist groups which either include a lesbian focus or have known lesbian participation. Most of the groups are Lesbian and are from the United States, though there are other countries represented.

- Geographic Files - Also known as “Lesbians in…”, the “Geo Files” are arranged in two series: the U.S. files and the International files. The collection has been built up over the years with material from the world-wide lesbian community. Visitors from all over the globe bring or send in items, either a single article or a handful of materials from their home state or country, or that they picked up while traveling. The collection consists of city guides, maps, directories, event flyers, programs, calendars, handbills, local newsletters, and newspaper clippings.

Source: Swarthmore College Peace Collection

The collection features correspondence, both personal and professional, articles and manuscript notes, alongside biographical material such as family papers and photographs. A large part of the material focuses on Hull’s work in the peace movement, including correspondence with other Women’s International League for Peace and Freedom members, financial statements, press releases and documents of the League.

The International HIV/AIDS Crisis collection assembles research studies that analyze the end goals and strategies of fighting this worldwide epidemic at the end of the twentieth century. These studies, reports, and analyses were conducted by governmental agencies, private organizations under contract with the US government, and international organizations—including the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention; World Health Organization; US Agency for International Development; Johns Hopkins University; and the National Institutes of Health. They represent the most rigorous and authoritative research on HIV/AIDS during the 1985–1999 period.

In the early days of the U.S. republic, Jeffersonian democracy held that small farms, worked primarily by the landholder and his family, were the foundation of bourgeois democracy. The current popular notion that U.S. agriculture is based on the family farm is a cherished hokum from this period. But this rote misconception contradicts a basic law of capitalism—the inevitable concentration of ever more wealth into the hands of ever fewer capitalists. Leon Trotsky, Lenin's co-thinker in the Russian Revolution, explained this process.

TEACHING PRIMARY SOURCE RESEARCH SKILLS – DISCOVERING NEW POINTS OF VIEW ABOUT EUROPEAN AND COLONISED WOMEN USING GALE’S NEW ARCHIVE “VOICE AND VISION”

The popularity of gender-related themes in historiography about the British Empire

Since the 1990s, historians have studied the metropole and periphery together in terms of “co-construction” – the idea that Empire is not just an add-on to British national identity, but that the Empire built the British nation and vice versa. In these works, many historians find gender to have been commonly posited as a marker of difference and justification for imperial rule. Popular themes include:

- How the “native woman” was constructed by the (male) colonial gaze, and how this reinforced imperial rule.
- The impact of colonialism on gender relations and European gender norms.
- The extent to which imperial culture impregnated British society in the late nineteenth century and early twentieth century.
IT’S TIME TO SHARE THE SPOTLIGHT: EXPLORATION OF TRANS VISIBILITY OVER THE YEARS

By Emily Priest, Gale Ambassador at the University of Portsmouth
Emily, otherwise known as Emily the Writer, is a Creative and Media Writing (BA Hons) student at Portsmouth University with interests in travel writing and creative marketing. She is also a freelance writer and performance poet. After her degree, she plans to take a Digital Marketing MA and pursue a career in marketing or journalism.

Looking back on trans history and how much visibility the community used to have can be hard to swallow at times but it is easy to research using the archives Gale’s Primary Sources. To put things into perspective I used Archives of Gender and Sexuality to compare how society has previously treated trans people with how they’re treated now.

Over the years we have made great progress and it seems that now, finally, the trans community are gaining visibility in many countries. However, we cannot overlook the work that still needs to be done. The trans community are still an oppressed community, with individuals abused and even murdered for who they are. Although Trans Visibility Day is a day for celebration, it is also a day for reflection and action; to learn from history’s mistakes and champion equal rights. We should all help work to end discrimination, and seek to support and bolster minorities. We can be each other’s strength and learn that there is enough room on stage for us all to share the spotlight.
Chevalier d’Éon (1728-1810). D’Éon was a diplomat, a soldier, a spy…and quite possibly transgender. Born Charles-Geneviève-Louis-Auguste-André-Timothée d’Éon de Beaumont, she had worn men’s clothing for much of her life, but upon running afoul of King Louis XV, she took up political exile in England. Rumours began to swirl that ‘he’ was actually ‘she,’ and d’Éon happily embraced them by dressing as a woman for the rest of her life.

Bugs Bunny – Queer Role Model

She makes no apologies for her Disney drag. Forget Danny La Rue or Charles Pierce, RuPaul follows in the tradition of the world's greatest drag queen, Mr. Bugs Bunny - how many times have we seen those ears come untucked from under a wig?

Bugs Bunny enjoyed the freedom to violate the norms of society, and one of the ways he violated those norms was to refuse to conform to "normal" gender roles. Bugs Bunny had fun not being conventionally masculine. He kissed his opponents, he pranced, he danced ballet, and he dragged. In fact, Bugs Bunny did drag so often, you have to wonder where he shopped. We can all remember the image of How do we find the right mix for our archives?

- Research – internet, books, magazines, radio programs
- Ideas from archivists, curators, and librarians – getting the inside scoop from the source
- Analysis of what is available in our microfilm collections
- Looking for critical mass in institutional holdings
- Looking at university course listings and descriptions – what is being studied?
- Attending conferences or visiting archives or libraries
- Market research surveys – polling librarians, students, and faculty for opinions
- Advisory boards

SEX AND SEXUALITY, SIXTEENTH TO TWENTIETH CENTURY

- Sex and Sexuality, Sixteenth to Twentieth Century is made up of more than 5,500 rare and unique books covering sex, sexuality, and gender issues across the sciences and humanities and throughout history.

- Digitizing these collections is of immense historical and research value, providing perspectives on history, society, social mores, and changing views on sexuality.

- The Private Case from the British Library, comprised of printed books segregated from the main library from the 1850s to 1990 on grounds of obscenity. It is an interesting study in social mores as the definition of obscenity has seen many changes since the mid-nineteenth-century.

- Special Subject Units from Sex Research: Early Literature from Statistics to Erotica, a collection from the Alfred C. Kinsey Institute for Sex Research dating from 1700 to 1860. This is a portion of Dr. Kinsey’s original library which he used to study human sexual behavior from a variety of academic and literary viewpoints.

- A collection of rare and unique books from the New York Academy of Medicine, consisting of more than 1,500 monographs covering a variety of topics in sex, sexuality, and gender studies. From sex education to erotica, manners to medicine, the Academy collection offers a rich combination of materials from the humanities to the hard sciences.

INTERNATIONAL PERSPECTIVES ON LGBTQ ACTIVISM AND CULTURE

• Gay and Lesbian Memory in Action (GALA) – GALA is a center for lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and questioning (LGBTIQ) culture and education in southern Africa. Their mission is to act as a catalyst for the production, preservation and dissemination of knowledge on the history, culture and contemporary experiences of LGBTIQ people. Gale has digitized 25 collections covering numerous aspects of LGBTIQ life in southern Africa.

• Australian Lesbian and Gay Archives – The ALGA is the only community group in Australia that actively collects and preserves LGBTIQ material from across the country and makes it readily accessible. Gale has digitized a portion of the rich ALGA periodicals collection, providing a window to Australia’s LGBTIQ community.

• Lesbian Herstory Archives – The Lesbian Herstory Archives exists to gather and preserve records of Lesbian lives and activities so that future generations will have ready access to materials relevant to their lives. Gale has digitized the Organization Files and Geographic Files from the Lesbian Herstory Archives, providing coverage of issues in activism and culture with a global scope.

July 19, 1848

When, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one portion of the family of man to assume among the people of the earth a position different from that which they have hitherto occupied, but one to which the laws of nature and of nature’s God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes that impel them to such a course.
